About ACPA

ACPA - College Student Educators International, headquartered in Washington, D.C. at the National Center for Higher Education, is the leading comprehensive student affairs association that advances student affairs and engages students for a lifetime of learning and discovery.

Founded in 1924 by May L. Cheney, ACPA has nearly 7,500 members representing 1,200 private and public institutions from across the U.S. and around the world. Members include organizations and companies that are engaged in the campus marketplace. Members also include graduate and undergraduate students enrolled in student affairs/higher education administration programs, faculty, and student affairs professionals, from entry level to senior student affairs officers.
Our Vision: ACPA leads the student affairs and student services professionals and the higher and tertiary education community in providing outreach, advocacy, research, and professional development to foster college student learning.

Our Mission: ACPA supports and fosters college student learning through the generation and dissemination of knowledge, which informs policies, practices and programs for student affairs and student services professionals and the higher and tertiary education community.

Our Core Values: The mission of ACPA is founded on, and implements, the following core values of the Association:

• Education and development of the total student.
• Diversity, multicultural competence and human dignity.
• Inclusiveness in and access to association-wide involvement and decision-making.
• Free and open exchange of ideas in a context of mutual respect.
• Advancement and dissemination of knowledge relevant to college students and their learning, and the effectiveness of student affairs and student services professionals and their institutions.
• Continuous professional development and personal growth of student affairs and student services professionals that includes the development of effective administrative leadership and management skills.
• Outreach and advocacy on issues of concern to students, student affairs and services professionals and the higher and tertiary education community, including affirmative action and other policy issues.
Dear Student Affairs & Student Services Leaders:

ACPA continued its tradition of providing forward-thinking leadership to our profession in 2012-2013. This annual report provides an excellent overview of the association’s activities over the past year, and reflects the dedication and tremendous work of our members, volunteer leaders and International Office staff.

One of the highlights of 2012-2013 was leading the Governing Board and Assembly Leadership through the adoption of a new Strategic Plan chaired by Past President Heidi Levine. This plan builds on ACPA’s leadership in the areas of research, scholarship and professional development to advance the high quality experiences that help our members help their students.

During 2012-2013 ACPA expanded its globalization efforts by leaders sharing educational information with members in China, Canada, Jamaica and Trinidad and Tobago among others. We also expanded our contributions to the educational discourse by launching the first ever ACPA Think Tank led by Stephen John Quaye that focused on the student affairs educators role in creating a civil society.

An exhilarating experience was our co-located convention with NIRSA – Leaders in Collegiate Recreation in Las Vegas, Nevada, USA. The deepest thanks is due to ACPA Convention Chair Karen Warren Coleman and the entire convention planning team for creating a venue in which we could inspire communities of wellbeing while honoring ACPA’s long standing value of collaboration in higher education.

It has been a privilege and honor to have served ACPA and our profession as your president.

Sincerely,

Keith B. Humphrey, Ph.D.
ACPA President, 2012-2013
Greetings!

The past academic year has come and gone and now we have the opportunity to reflect on the successes, challenges and issues of concern for the future. There were many new undertakings this year, such as the development of a 3-5 year Strategic Plan for the association and the co-location of the very successful ACPA/NIRSA 2013 Annual Convention in Las Vegas, Nevada, the culmination of an ongoing relationship with Pam Watts, Executive Director of NIRSA – Leaders in Collegiate Recreation. Additionally, the cultivation of partnerships between Kim Nehls, Executive Director of the Association for the Study of Higher Education (ASHE), and Richard Ekman, President of the Council of Independent Colleges (CIC), has proven beneficial for all. Collaborations and partnerships are essential in today’s challenging economic climate and I am pleased that ACPA is building on these relationships. Our students are the benefactors of our “bridge building” for a stronger student development experience.

“Our students are the benefactors of our ‘bridge building’ for a stronger student development experience.”

I would like to say “Thank you!” to the hundreds of volunteer leaders with whom I’ve had the opportunity to work this year. The association has grown and has become a value added component to the professional development of our members. The academic year 2012-2013 saw an increase in individual and institutional memberships, and the continuation of our signature professional development symposiums and institutes to include the Phyllis Mable New Professionals Institute (NPI), the Donna Bourassa Mid-Level Managers Institute (MMI) and the Senior Student Affairs Officers (SSAO) Symposium. Additionally, we have begun work on an ACPA/CIC cosponsored Academic and Student Affairs Leaders’ Institute to be held next year.

Sincerely,

Gregory Roberts, Ed.S.

ACPA Updates Strategic Plan

As ACPA prepares for its 90th Anniversary in 2014 and begins the transition process to envision the 100th Anniversary of the Association in 2024, we are looking not only at the Association but also into the future of higher and tertiary education. Given that focus, the following six priorities will guide the Association’s activities and create opportunities for ACPA to stimulate global interest:

1. Career Development
2. Professional Development
3. Leadership in Higher Education
4. Social Justice
5. Research & Scholarship
6. Association Performance and Excellence

ACPA Bylaws Vote Passes

Changes to the ACPA bylaws were passed by an overwhelming majority of members who voted (95%-yes; 5%-no). The voting took place from March 22 to 31, 2013. Thank you to all who participated. This vote is the culmination of two years of work by the ACPA Bylaws Committee and the ACPA Governing Board. We believe that these changes, in their entirety, reflect our on-going commitment to leadership in higher and tertiary education; to equity, inclusion, and social justice; and to providing outstanding member benefits to students, faculty, and professionals in student affairs and student services.

ACPA and Campus Pride Partner on White Paper

Independent Auditor’s Report

Governing Board
American College Personnel Association

We have audited the accompanying financial statements of American College Personnel Association (a nonprofit organization), which comprise the statements of financial position as of June 30, 2013 and 2012, and the related statements of activities, functional expenses, and cash flows for the years then ended, and the related notes to the financial statements.

Management’s Responsibility for the Financial Statements

Management is responsible for the preparation and fair presentation of these financial statements in accordance with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America; this includes the design, implementation, and maintenance of internal control relevant to the preparation and fair presentation of financial statements that are free from material misstatement, whether due to fraud or error.

Auditor’s Responsibility

Our responsibility is to express an opinion on these financial statements based on our audits. We conducted our audits in accordance with auditing standards generally accepted in the United States of America. Those standards require that we plan and perform the audit to obtain reasonable assurance about whether the financial statements are free of material misstatement.

An audit involves performing procedures to obtain audit evidence about the amounts and disclosures in the financial statements. The procedures selected depend on the auditor’s judgment, including the assessment of the risks of material misstatement of the financial statements, whether due to fraud or error. In making those risk assessments, the auditor considers internal control relevant to the entity’s preparation and fair presentation of the financial statements in order to design audit procedures that are appropriate in the circumstances, but not for the purpose of expressing an opinion on the effectiveness of the entity’s internal control. Accordingly, we express no such opinion. An audit also includes evaluating the appropriateness of accounting policies used and the reasonableness of significant accounting estimates made by management, as well as evaluating the overall presentation of the financial statements.

We believe that the audit evidence we have obtained is sufficient and appropriate to provide a basis for our audit opinion.

Opinion

In our opinion, financial statements referred to above present fairly, in all material respects, the financial position of American College Personnel Association, as of June 30, 2013 and 2012, and the changes in its net assets and its cash flows for the years then ended in accordance with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America.
